UPDATE ON TIGER BRANDS PEANUT BUTTER QUALITY ASSURANCE PROTOCOLS

Dear Customer,

In light of select peanut butter brands being recalled, I want to provide you with an update on the safety and quality assurance protocols in place for the production of Black Cat peanut butter. Black Cat peanut butter products are not affected by the recall currently underway.

At Tiger Brands, we consider safety and quality as non-negotiables. Across our portfolio of brands, we follow rigorous safety and quality assurance protocols in the sourcing of raw materials, ingredients and the production of our finished products to ensure consumers can enjoy our loved brands with peace of mind.

Specific to Peanut Butter, all raw material peanuts are tested prior to delivery with test results verified by the site before delivery is accepted. The finished product is again tested prior to packaging and distribution for sale. Both raw materials and finished product follow a positive release protocol, and any products that do not meet our high standards for safety and quality are rejected and safely destroyed.

We also work with suppliers, farmers and agriculturalists as part of our Supplier Quality Assurance programme.

Should you have any questions or concerns, I encourage you to engage with your dedicated Tiger Brands customer representative directly.

We thank you for your ongoing support.

Yours faithfully,
